Introduction from the NZIS President

I am pleased to introduce the reviewed strategic plan for New Zealand Institute of Surveyors (NZIS). This is our continuing roadmap – updated to make sure it remains relevant for the next five years. Since it was first developed in 2013, we have come a long way and it is satisfying to see the governance model introduced now well embedded. We have also grown our commercial partnerships to an unprecedented level which supports our continuing membership growth.

Our next focus will be on developing the Professional Streams we have established; ensuring they are functioning at a level that allows the values and aims of NZIS to be real and applicable to the day to day surveying and spatial environments.

Jeff Needham
NZIS PRESIDENT

About the NZIS

NZIS was formed in 1888 to give the surveying profession a national voice, a methodology behind support for the profession, advocacy on key issues, continued professional development (training) and to provide collegiality to its members.

Many factors have changed since NZIS was founded and this means that our profession must answer to and deliver far more than ever before.

In order to be more responsive to the needs of our members and the sector as a whole NZIS has restructured and refocused towards an organisation that anticipates change and is considerate of the long term needs of our profession and New Zealanders.

The sector is changing and this will have a significant effect on our members and profession. Our overarching mission is to ensure that we remain in control of our own destiny and offer support and services to the total surveying and spatial sector and value to our members.

How we run NZIS and make decisions

The below diagram shows how the components of membership of NZIS fit.

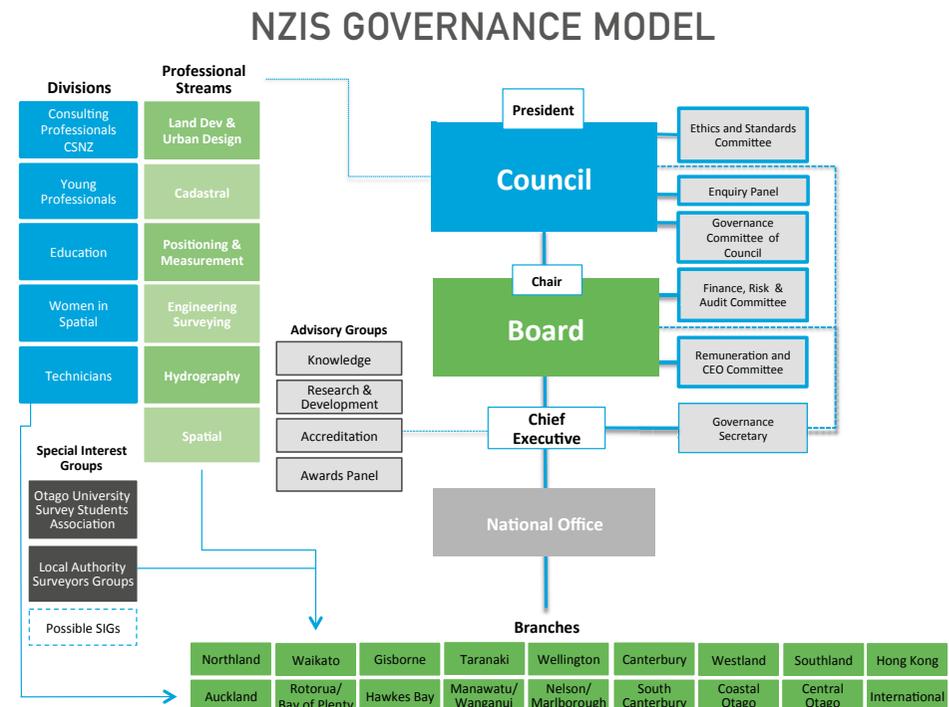

Diagram 1

Our governance model reflects that we are first and foremost a membership organization. The model shows how members lead the organization and share technical expertise and geographical interests. Our governance model has separated functions and responsibilities between groups and these are shown Diagram 2.

The membership will be consulted directly for input on an annual basis but at any time issues or questions can be raised and will be referred to the CEO, if operational, or the Board or Council, depending on the nature of the topic raised.

NZIS vision

NZIS is an internationally recognised professional organisation that promotes growth, innovation, excellence in all facets of surveying and spatial in New Zealand.

NZIS mission

To lead and foster a vibrant sector that allows the surveying and spatial profession to grow, and positively influence our communities.

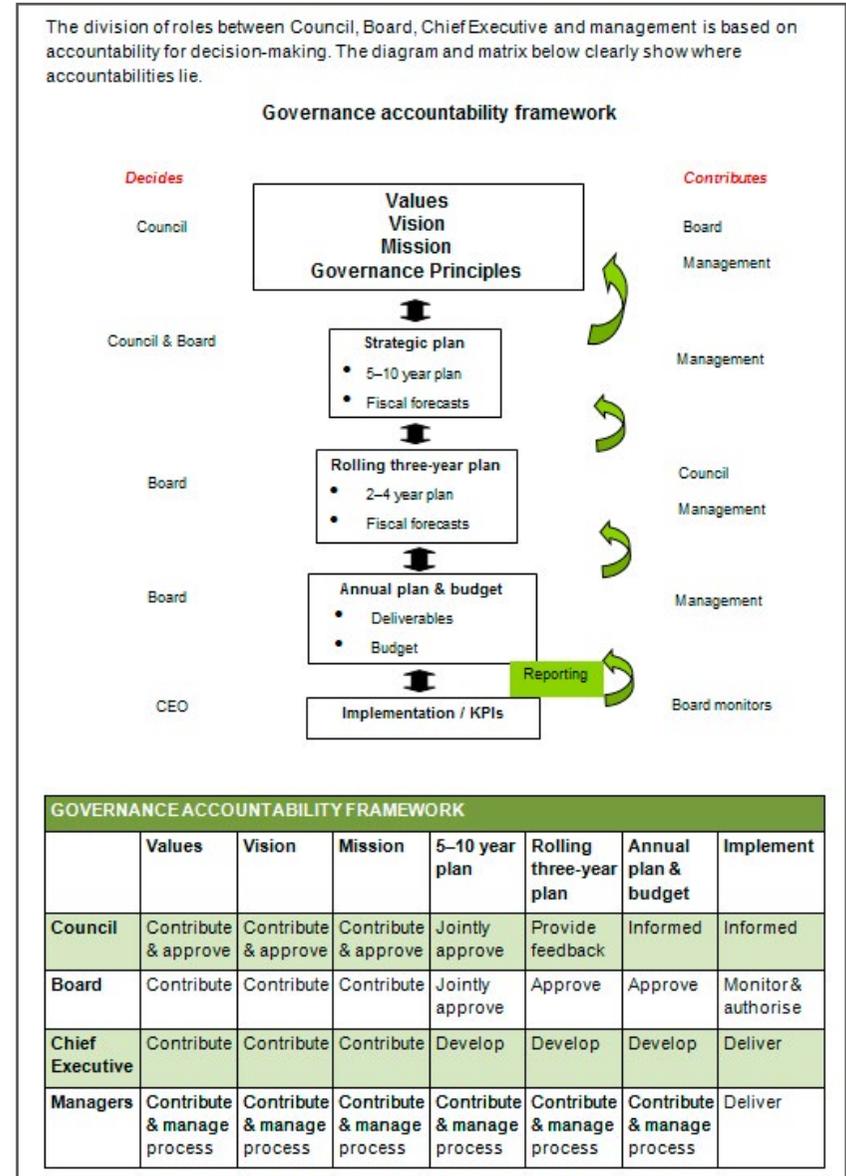

Diagram 2

NZIS values

Our values underpin our vision and feed into making a healthy culture and profession.

The NZIS Constitution outlines our foundations as a professional society. Our members are bound by a common commitment to promote surveying and spatial and to facilitate its practice based upon shared values of:

1. Integrity and Ethical behaviour

We will act honestly with the highest standards of integrity.

2. Environmental sustainability

Our actions will promote environmental sustainability.

3. Excellence

We will strive for excellence in all we do. Performing in accordance with the accepted principles of appropriate behaviour.

4. Respect for the profession

Valuing our community and other members' points of view.

About this plan

The NZIS Strategic Plan is a living document and as such is reviewed each year to ensure it is in tune with what will or may occur in the foreseeable future. The plan shows the foundations for our very being and the major objectives that will be focused on as we head towards our stated vision.

The guiding principle behind the NZIS 2015 to 2020 Strategic Plan is that anything we do should meet the test of answering the question: "How will this add value to our members and our communities?" in the short term and perhaps more importantly long term.

It is our strong view that adopting such an overall strategy will lead to a much stronger and more cohesive organisation and that will feed directly to our vision, our mission and the very reason NZIS exists.

This plan is how NZIS will grow our support, our membership and our voice in the surveying and spatial sector. A separate annual business plan is prepared that executes this strategic plan.

NZIS aims

To achieve our vision, our aims for the next five years are to:

1. Support Members and the sector

Recognise the needs and aspirations of the sector and support members to achieve those aspirations.

4. Enhanced recognition and understanding of our role

Enhance public and in particular, young people's understanding of the role and impact the surveying and spatial sector plays in today's society.

2. Uphold Professional standards

Uphold standards in education, competence and ethical behaviour.

5. Grow the sector

Foster a sustainable, capable and vibrant surveying and spatial sector sufficient to meet this country's diverse and future needs.

3. Lead and advocate for the profession

Promote a strong ethos of leadership, innovation and best practice. To identify, inform and influence decision-makers on issues important to our members and the sector.

6. Ensure a Sustainable NZIS

Ensure that the NZIS remains financially sustainable through prudent fiscal management and governance practice and process.

Our key objectives

Following on from our aims, NZIS has formulated objectives, actions and measurables. In this section each aim is expanded to define what activities NZIS will focus on over the stated years. Many of the aims are aspirational and open ended and as such will be subject to annual review.
