

What we do for members

Promote professionalism

- Support and promote professionalism through a Code of Ethical and Professional Conduct
- Acknowledge professional status through formal competency and achievement programmes
- Represent the profession to local, regional and central government, the business community and public
- Providing professional and social networking opportunities at local, regional, national and international levels
- Support members with own practices through the Consulting Surveyors of NZ group
- Support industry succession by providing networking and support opportunities for young professionals.

Continuing professional Development (CPD)

- Provide Continuing Professional Development (CPD) programmes
- Provide guidelines and opportunities for members undertaking further training
- Provide new graduates with support for gaining work experience leading to registration
- Award bursaries and scholarships to encourage post-graduate academic.

Research and Development

- Allocate research and development funds to support research initiatives of members

Recognise Achievement and Excellence

- Recognise and promote members' professional achievements with Excellence award programmes

- ©NZIS www.surveyors.org.nz/Joining NZIS/Membership benefits

- Recognise and award members' achievements and service to the profession and community.

Communication and Networking

- Communicate through various channels: email, website, social media, print and digital publications
- Support a nationwide network of regional branches
- Produce a monthly, quarterly magazine and annual publications
- Publish a refereed academic journal
- Maintain a members' intranet and website with relevant information and members' discussion forum
- Establish professional relationships with similar organisations such as IPENZ, Planning and Property institutes on behalf of members.

Advocacy

- Advocate on member's behalf on relevant legislation and issues
- Advocate for surveying/spatial students with tertiary education providers
- Set up special interest and working groups to look at issues
- Organise and support information-sharing events including:
- Provide international contacts for members including FIG, CASLE and Royal Society of NZ.

Publications

NZIS members receive a range of publications:

- New Zealand Surveyor – a high quality, technical journal containing refereed material of an academic and technical nature
- Surveying+Spatial- quarterly magazine containing general interest features and non-refereed technical papers
- Newslink – monthly newsletter containing brief and timely information of importance to membership.

- ©NZIS www.surveyors.org.nz/Joining NZIS/Membership benefits