

Are your drivers treating your vehicles like dodgems?

Around 30% of road crashes involve drivers driving for work and, according to a Department of Labour study, a crash costs a company an average of $121,000.

ACC and NZTA estimate that around 25% of fleet vehicles are involved in an accident every year, and the Insurance Council of NZ reported $400,000,000 of commercial vehicle claims in one year!

More seriously, at least a third of workplace fatalities are vehicle-related – it's the single biggest health and safety risk for any company with drivers.

Assess your drivers' knowledge using our free Road Code tests at drivingtests.co.nz

Then try our comprehensive online Fleet Driver Training Plan for advanced driving skills and important Health & Safety at Work Act compliance.
