

Deputy Surveyor-General

Office of the Surveyor-General, Wellington

- Are you passionate about the integrity of the cadastral survey system?
- Ready to leave your mark on the survey system?
- Interested in extending your career into genuine leadership?

This is an opportunity for an experienced licensed cadastral surveyor to take on the time-honoured role of Deputy Surveyor-General.

This is a rare opportunity to become a recognised and respected leader of the survey system and influence its future shape.

The Deputy Surveyor-General leads a small close-knit team of survey experts to help the Surveyor-General carry out regulatory and stewardship responsibilities, and contribute to exciting new initiatives such as LINZ's Survey and Title Enhancement Programme ('STEP') to rebuild Landonline.

If working in a regulatory area hasn't pushed your buttons, think again. The Deputy Surveyor-General's role involves a nice balance between interesting technical / regulatory issues and higher-level leadership and management functions. One moment you might be pondering what to do about a survey error; the next you might be in high level discussions about the future of the survey system.

We want only the best to help lead and regulate the cadastral survey system. We're looking for someone who can answer the 'why' questions, not just the 'how'. You'll need to have broad experience in the survey and property sectors, with an in-depth knowledge of the cadastral survey system and land tenure systems. You'll also need solid analytical and reasoning skills. Previous experience working in a regulatory environment would be an advantage.

You would be working with an enthusiastic team of survey specialists who work closely together to produce some great results, so a willingness to work collaboratively and build strong relationships is especially valued.

These are big boots to fill, but in return you'll have the satisfaction of helping to make a real difference. LINZ offers a stimulating work environment, engaged colleagues, and flexible work arrangements. We live our values of being Bold, Expert and Stronger Together, and encourage personal development.

Please apply online, and submit your CV along with a covering letter outlining your skills and experience for this role. We're looking for evidence of how you meet the key selection criteria described here and in the position description.

Applications close on 9 December.
